OVERVIEW

According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), 1 in 6 children in the United States has a developmental disability or developmental delay and 1 in 44 has an autism spectrum disorder (ASD). As the American Academy of Pediatrics highlights, there is a shortage of developmental and behavioral specialists, limiting access to specialty care for many children with developmental or behavioral health conditions. This conference will address some of the leading developmental and behavioral health concerns that pediatricians and primary care providers deal with on a daily basis: increasing safety and preventing harm for children and adolescents with developmental and behavioral disabilities, understanding applied behavior analysis (ABA) and the evidence-based approaches that exist to support children and adolescents with ASD, diagnosing autism in primary care, understanding neurodiversity, practical strategies for successful office visits when a child has a developmental or behavioral disability, and identifying risk factors for and supporting families in accessing interventions for learning disabilities. Each lecture will include evidence-based treatments, support management, and resource suggestions, and speakers will be available for round-table small group learning over the working lunch.

GENERAL INFORMATION

The conference will be held in the HUB for Clinical Collaboration Building at Children's Hospital of Philadelphia. The registration fee is $150 for physicians and $100 for nurses. The fee includes continental breakfast, breaks, lunch, parking and syllabus material.
